

Introducing Junction Australia

For more than 35 years, Junction Australia has been working in South Australia to support vulnerable children, isolated young people and disadvantaged families, especially those who are homeless or at risk of homelessness. We seek to overcome social and economic disadvantage by:

- Contributing to the well-being of children and the safety and effectiveness of families and relationships
- Empowering and equipping young people to live well in the community
- Providing safe places for people to meet, work, learn and play
- Providing affordable and appropriate places to call home.

Our Vision

The value of all groups and individuals is actively demonstrated by the way they are included and enabled to participate in the community.

"The future is not a destination toward which we are passively heading. Rather, it is something that we are actively creating through our every decision and action. Therefore, we must continue to engage in courageous conversations about where we are headed and what must be done."

- Graham Brown, CEO

Our Mission

Junction Australia builds inclusive communities by providing quality housing, community development and social support services. We work with people who are socially or economically disadvantaged and assist them to overcome barriers, develop resilience and connect to the community.

Core Values

Junction Australia aspires to deliver flexible and responsive services that are underpinned by:

RESPECT – every person deserves to be treated with respect

TRUST – safety and trust are the foundations of healthy families and relationships

INCLUSION – inclusive communities value and embrace diversity

INTEGRITY – being honest and open to others.

What are Socially Responsible Businesses?

- SRB's are businesses that recognise that good 'corporate citizenship' extends beyond simply abiding by the law and embraces obligations to the wider community
- SRB's seek to behave ethically and to improve quality of life for their workforce, families and the broader community whilst pursuing strong economic performance
- SRB workplaces foster positive organisational cultures that staff are proud to be part of and contribute to.

What advantages do Socially Responsible Businesses enjoy?

- SRB's are recognised by their customers and valued by their local communities
- A positive 'brand' and employer profile helps attract and retain the best staff
- Good reputation amongst your customers and wider community expands contacts leading to increased sales
- Contributing to improved social outcomes for disadvantaged people and the wider community helps to meet business accreditation requirements and win tenders (i.e. Government tenders and contracts)
- Staff are inspired and proud to participate in healthy community activities and initiatives.

Junction Australia depends on the support of the broader community to continue its important work. As a local business you are invited to join us and be recognised as a Socially Responsible Business.

When your business supports the work of Junction Australia, we support you by:

- Providing a 'Socially Responsible Business' logo which can be proudly displayed at your premises and used in your marketing materials
- Proudly displaying your business name and logo on the Junction Australia website
- Inviting you and your staff to some great business networking events
- Providing you with articles for your staff newsletter and other information about the difference your support is making.

How can your business support Junction Australia's community building work?

- Promote the 'One for Many' Payroll Giving Scheme - encourage and enable staff to make regular tax deductible donations to charities of their choice via your payroll system
- Commit to $ for $ matching of all staff donations so they know you are serious about doing it with them
- Make direct donations to support the work of Junction Australia with vulnerable children, disadvantaged young people and families
- Encouraging and/or supporting staff to volunteer their time and skills (we'll be happy to come and speak to your staff to discuss their interest and respond to their questions)
- Support Junction Australia by Buddy Marketing using your existing communication channels, so there's no extra cost to you
- Have a collection tin at Reception, together with some brochures about our work.

100% of donations received are applied to support our services – our administration and other resource costs are funded internally.
